Detroit's Studio City Experience Detroit's music recording industry!

Nestled along a half-mile stretch in Ferndale, Michigan, a suburb of Detroit, you will find among the rugged industrial shops and gray warehouses, the bustling epicenter of Detroit's music recording scene. Most who drive through this area every day, probably don't even realize it's there: a concentration of high-end studios and audio firms humming with creativity and commerce. Here you will find Detroit's Studio City. You will find the likes of Fifty-Four Sound, a studio complex that has produced records from some legendary artists from Motown to Rap to Jazz and more! This is the studio where the legendary 8 Mile soundtrack was recorded. But, it's early days were dominated by funk and gospel and clients came to include Prince, Red Hot Chili Peppers, Eminem, Nicki Minaj and more. F.B.T Studios is owned by Mark and Jeff Bass and has hosted musicians such as George Clinton, Eminem, D12, T.I., and the Dramatics. You will also find Tempermill Studio which is owned by Dave Feeny. The list of Tempermill clients throughout the years ranges from Kid Rock and Jack White to national figures such as Loretta Lynn, and John Hiatt. Effigy Studios, the legendary recording studio purchased by Eminem in 2007, is a world-class facility where Eminem records in addition to musicians such as 50 Cent. In addition to studios, Then, we will venture over to The Detroit School of Rock and Pop Music where you will learn about instruments, music, and experience what it's like to record in a studio. You will tour two studios in addition to The Detroit School of Rock and Pop Music.
