Play Ball! Cheer on your favorite ball team, The Brewers, while soaking up the warm desert sunshine in Arizona. Get a head start on the baseball season at the Cactus League in the Valley of the Sun. The Milwaukee Brewers have spent every spring training in Arizona, including when the team was the Seattle Pilots. In 1969, they trained in Tempe, an arrangement which lasted through 1972. This was followed by a move to Sun City from 1973 to 1985, Chandler from 1986 to 1997 and then to American Family Fields of Phoenix in 1998. The team has developed a large fan base, attracting thousands of people to each game. When you are in the stands at one of the games, you can enjoy seeing your favorite players on the field and experience the rush that comes with every home run. The experience allows you to celebrate your love of the Brewers! In Major League Baseball, Spring Training is a series of practices and exhibition games preceding the start of the regular season. Spring training allows new players to try out for roster and position spots, and gives existing team players practice time prior to competitive play. Spring training has always attracted fan attention, drawing crowds who travel to the warmer climates to enjoy the weather and watch their favorite teams play, and spring training usually coincides with spring break for many US college students. Let's show our support for a race to the World Series. And enjoy some warm weather while it is snowy in Wisconsin!
